Cheetah Vs. Leopard - Know the Differences and ...

Leopards are the shortest of the big cats, although they are strong and bulky - strong enough to pull their prey up trees in order to protect their meal. Cheetah are much lighter and taller, which contributes to their ability to run as quickly as they do. In the wild, a leopard will chase off any cheetahs that approach its territory.

Cheetah ambushed by leopard, but hardly overmatched

Leopards and cheetahs are two very different cats and yet so often people get them mixed up. What I'd like to do is share some of the obvious and not-so-obvious differences so that you won't have a problem telling them apart again. Size and body shape: Although cheetah are taller at the shoulder than a leopard and therefore stand higher above the ground, they are substantially more slender in ...
